Gioielli in Fermento 2020

FERMENTO!
EVOZUZIONE & AFFINAMENTO
AGING & EVOLUTION

Villa Braghieri - May 2020 - Castel San Giovanni, Piacenza, Italy

International competition open to established and emerging artists and designers for an unreleased (*) piece of experimental jewellery inspired by the theme - 10th Edition

The city of Castel San Giovanni (Piacenza) in collaboration with AGC Associazione Gioiello Contemporaneo, will host the 2020 Edition of the contemporary jewellery competition linked to the cultural and artistic context of Val Tidone Valley. Getting inspiration from a typical landscape of the Emilia region, the curatorial project extends every year to its international audience of passionates and experts in the field of research in jewellery.

In addition to the professional/emerging category, two student sections have been set, to involve institutes for art education and jewellery schools based all over the world which would offer an interesting view to younger students and undergraduates looking for further in-depth experiences (learning and master degree sections).

Theme of the competition

FERMENTO! AGING AND EVOLUTION Affinamento ed Evoluzione

Carrying forward with the connection between wine and studio jewellery and using the words of wine, Gioielli in Fermento X (the 10th Edition) suggests the concept of maturity and evolution coming from the pathway of each author's research.

Moreover, it's time for a reflection. How did all this ferment get into ten years of exhibitions and tales about our relationship with the lively context that surround us? We dealt with conviviality, landscapes, quality of life, Mediterranean shades, memories, colours, emotions, roots, territories and materials.

How far ahead are we with the way to express and interpret ornaments? What are the next steps approaching the field of research jewellery?

Evolution – where are we going? – towards the unknown or the refinement of skills, near freestyle performance or maturation of practise and aging?

Answers are up to You, designer, artist, contemporary goldsmith, researcher, expert craftsman or student.

Once more the metaphorical tasting will be evoked, thanks to the authentic contribution of the works selected (**) by the jury and shown in the next collection.

For 10 years, the main focus of the competition has been inspired by the chemical phenomenon of fermentation as the metaphor underlining the evolutionary aspect of contemporary experimental jewellery, which represents a crossroads between individual research paths and international collective atmospheres. A piece of jewellery is the result of a pure fermenting process.

The general context of the project Gioielli in Fermento, as it to say about the term fermentation, ideally refers to a suitably "transformed" result, an art jewellery piece, which constitutes the outcome of the research itself, linked to phases of preparation, experimentation, quality determination.

Apart from the chemical phenomenon, which has a precise role in the world of wine, over the years we have tried to investigate this concept more and more by putting it in relation with the world of contemporary body ornaments. At the turn of the X Edition, the theme, from fermentation, leads to Aging and Evolution with the purpose of communicating something even more accomplished and beyond the inherent state of maturation.

The winning work will express a unique creative energy, the original individuality typical of research studio jewellery which represents the concept of contemporary fermento (restlessness, excitement, trepidation, upheaval ...) through the maturity of the path and the author who experiences it.

Artists will present an ornament for the body (****) challenging the theme, evoking descriptive or conceptual traits according to their own inspiration.

The unquestionable choice of the jury will respect the essence of the work and its consistency within the collection that will be put on display for the 10th anniversary of Gioielli in Fermento.

Eliana Negroni
Founder and director of Gioielli in Fermento

(*) unreleased : unprecedeted work – the award will be contingent upon the distinguished factor of the work to be new, never seen or published before

(**) elements for evaluation: balanced combination of concept, form, individual character, harmony with the body, structure, freshness in use or accuracy of making techniques

(***) body ornament: necklace, pendant, brooch, ring, earrings, other wearable ornament (clothing excluded)

Special Mentions

Entry works

Any kind of ornament for the human body (except clothing), made using any material or technique, will be accepted provided it can be worn. Each author will compete with one work to be selected for competition.

It can be a unique piece or a distinct piece set apart from a limited edition collection.

More pieces related to the main work might be presented within the same submission. This is just optional and it would not represent an advantage in selection.

Previously exhibited works, or works selected for any other competition, may not be submitted.

The unprecedented requirement (work not seen/shown/published before) may not be verified during the selection but will be contingent and decisive for the awarding of the prize.

The admission to the competition will be evaluated with the advice of the board of advisors, taking into high consideration: original material and technique used, experimentation and project research, relevance to the theme, style balance, high quality detail in realization, wearable feature.

With the registration to the competition the author states the work is originally made and not published before and no other owns any copyright on it.

The Jury

The Gioielli in Fermento Awards will be assigned by the Jury Committee invited by Eliana Negroni, director of the project:

Alba Cappellieri, professor of Jewelry Design and Accessory at the Milan Polytechnic, director of the Museo del Gioiello, Vicenza, Italy

Renzo Pasquale, artist and teacher at the goldsmith department of P.Selvatico Art school in Padua, Italy

Olga Zobel, founder and director of Galerie Birò (Munich, Germany - Cagnes sur Mer, France)
